SOCIAL AND PERSONAL.

Maryon Day, the ex-Turkish minister, gave a farewell dinner at the Malvern, Bar Harbor, last week.

Though not so large as some of the previous affairs given by the popular diplomat, it was no less brilliant. Maryon's departure for London last week occasioned much regret among the guests of the Malvern, more especially as he returns to Turkey in the fall.

The floral decorations at the dinner were exquisite, consisting of violets and hydrangeas. The guests were Mrs. Frederick Schuchard, Miss Johnson, Mrs. Leidy, Mrs. Wright, Mrs. Nelson, Miss Fisher, Miss Cox, James T. Woodward, Mr. Lebr, William Lumber, Col. Edwards, V. Morrell, Count d'Aranson, and George T. Newhall.

Mrs. Roswell D. Hiltchcock gave a farewell dinner at Bar Harbor recently in honor of Miss Daisy Pierson, who has returned to her summer home at Newport. Red was the prevailing color in the table decorations. Miss Pierson is the daughter of Gen. Pierson, of New York, and one of the reigning belles at Newport. Among Mrs. Hiltchcock's guests were: Charles Cooper, Mrs. Frank Ellis, Miss Blanche Anderson, Miss Hiltchcock, Prince Wrede, Count d'Aranson, Mr. Haydon, and Shirley Goddard.

Miss A. E. Kelly and Miss Florence Howlett are summering near Round Hill, Va.

Mrs. Ellen Smith has gone to Atlantic City and New York for the remainder of this month.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Reddick are at Leonardtown, Md.

Miss Sarah Yeatman is in Falls Church, visiting Miss John Merriell.

Miss Virginia Dorsey of 1266 Eighteenth street, has just returned from her trip to the Virginia mountains.

Among the Washington summerers at Virginia Beach are Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Johnson, Mrs. C. C. Farrar, Capt. and Mrs. William Johnson and Mrs. B. Forbes.

The engagement is announced of Miss Helen Mae Foss, daughter of Mrs. Sara R. Foss of Massachusetts avenue northwest, and Mr. Charles Francis Jones of New York. Mr. Jones is well known in Washington, he having been in business here for some time. He is a member of the Columbia Athletic Club. The wedding will take place this fall.

Mrs. Kate Johnson and Mrs. Emma F. Upperton of this city have gone to Washington and Charleston, W. Va., for a short stay.

Miss Viola V. Hines of 3318 O street northwest has returned home after a delightful visit to friends in Norfolk and Suffolk, Va.

Mr. Wagner and family of Capitol Hill have returned from Narragansett Pier.

A "maze" party was given last night by Miss Julia Davis of Capitol Hill in honor of her guest, Miss Robert Carroll of Troy, N. Y., who will leave for her home today. The house was decorated with palms and ferns, and each of the six refreshment tables were arranged artistically with glass stalks and asters, the color scheme being pink.

At 8 o'clock each of the merry young guests were given a string of pink beads, the evening being to find its hidden source. As the threads had been intertwined over doors, along halls and up stairways the search was a long and exciting one, the explorers achieving success only after several hours' search. The reward, justified the task, however, as tied to the end of each string was a pretty and appropriate gift.

The music was furnished by the Capitol Hill Troubadour Club, composed of Messrs. Hunt, Gibson, Staley and Harris, and fancy dances were given by Misses Eva and Agnes Price.

Among the guests present were Miss Rose Duncan, Miss Ella Stevens, Miss Mollie Harrison, Miss Lou Spicer, Misses Mary and Florence Daley, Miss Maud Kelley, Mr. John Duncan, Mr. Hal Barkley, Mr. John Spaulding, Mr. Lou Wallace, Mr. Fred Keiser, Mr. Walter Bentley and Mr. Paul Barnes.

FOR GIRL ATHLETES.

THE remarkable records which college girls are making in athletics and their determination to outdo their brothers who share the same field, has led to the records cause no small degree of alarm among those who think that a medal is small recompense for a permanent strain and that a laurel wreath is not worth a grave. One who is familiar with amateur sports and the methods of training competitors gives it as his opinion that there is no danger whatever in running, and no reason why girls should not make excellent scores in the hundred yard dash, in sprinting and in looking like the world's champion against the jumps of all kinds. He would even banish the skipping rope. As to the fear expressed about the action of the heart in running, he says girls should be trained like professionals, and that it is possible to regulate the number of heart beats, so that violent exertion shall produce comparatively little suffering, but without such training both boys and girls should beware of attempting to achieve phenomenal feats.—Brooklyn Eagle.

BARNARDS IN ENGLAND.

THE number of barnards in England has been reckoned at between 20,000 and 30,000, and W. B. H. Wilkins tells us that on making investigations he found very few who disliked their calling or who were dissatisfied with their lot. He gives from his notebook a typical case. It is that of a serving girl in one of the largest houses in London, and his statement: "Like the rest of course I like it," she said, "and what's more, it does me. Do you think I should keep on with it if I didn't like it? I expect money at this time I should at anything else, and though I get a bit tired with standing so long, when I'm off duty I can do what I please, as a girl ought to do when she works so hard as I do. Oh! of course I have my drawbacks, but it's a lot better than being a 'lady's maid'! I don't know of any such somewhere as a nursery governess, or click-clicking with a typewriter all day long. Anyway, I like it."

PATCH BOXES.

BOXES for patches or "nouches" came into general use late in the seventeenth century, after the patches themselves had long been worn. Many of these boxes are as pretty as the bonbonnières. They were often given as wedding presents, and were of great variety of shapes, some of them taking the form of a little bottle of Louis d'Or. Among the gifts sent from the French king to the Queen of Spain in 1714 were three patch boxes worth $208. Two of lacquer, belonging to the dauphin, were valued at $1,700. The Pompadour was in the form of a swan in white enamel, and cost her, or the king, $113. Boxes for the toilet have long been made of precious materials and in artistic forms.—Art Amateur.

DR. ADDISON'S SUCCESSOR.

Trinity Vestry Appoints a Committee of Four to Make a Selection.

Contrary to rumor the vestry of the Trinity P. E. Church, at its regular monthly meeting last night, did not decide upon a minister to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the former rector, Dr. T. G. Addison last April.

A committee of four was appointed, however, to consider the recommendations of the society of ministers whose names have been proposed and to select the one they think most capable of filling the charge. No other action will be taken until the October meeting of the vestry, when Bishop Batterlee will have returned to the city.

Rev. A. M. Rich, who was the assistant rector under Dr. Addison, has been charged since the latter's death and has given satisfaction in every way, and consequently, a sentiment pervades a considerable portion of the worshippers that he be retained permanently as rector.

Among the others most prominently mentioned for the rectorship are Dr. Baker, of Indiana, and Dr. Andrews, of St. Paul, Minn., who was formerly pastor at Christ Church, this city.

There was some talk among the members of Trinity congregation of a movement to erect a memorial to the memory of Dr. Addison, who died on Good Friday of this year. Dr. Addison had filled the pulpit for nearly thirty years up to the time of his death and had never wavered in his zeal for the advancement of the church and the congregation.

A committee of nine, Rev. A. M. Rich, the present incumbent, being chairman, has been appointed to solicit funds, and so far the committee has met with gratifying success. Just what the memorial will be has not yet been definitely decided upon. It is likely, however, that it will either be a tablet or a memorial window.

The choir at the Trinity has returned from its summer vacation and will welcome the music at the services next Sunday, new soprano, Miss Goodwin, of this city.

ART OF SHOPPING.

Suggestions Which Greatly Lessen All the Drudgery.

In the season of new and renewing garments, woman's mind naturally turns to thoughts of shopping. While shoppers, like poets, are born rather than made, there are certain pieces of forethoughtfulness which, if duly exercised, will make the art and mystery less mysterious and ever so much more comfortable to the timid, the inexperienced—even the unfortunate who never knows her own mind until after she has made her purchases, and discovers then that they are exactly what she did not want.

A wise woman begins her campaign by taking account of stock. If she has children she decides what may be kept, what thrown away, what handed down to smaller, and what, by help of new furnishings, will answer the season through. This done, she knows exactly the things indispensable, and makes a list of them, setting opposite each its probable cost. The sum total compared with the money at her disposal shows at once what is available for luxuries.

She also takes accurate mental cognizance of colors and shades, and when it comes to buying new dresses she knows exactly what to buy. Thus she avoids jackets that simply wear at last season's skirts or green hats which must be worn with blue or purple frocks. Nor does she allow herself to forget that a low priced article is often in the end a dear bargain. It costs to the full as much to make, line and furnish a poor, shabby garment as one of better texture. If one cannot afford costly fabrics, it is ever so much better to put the money available into plain stuffs which are the best of their kind.

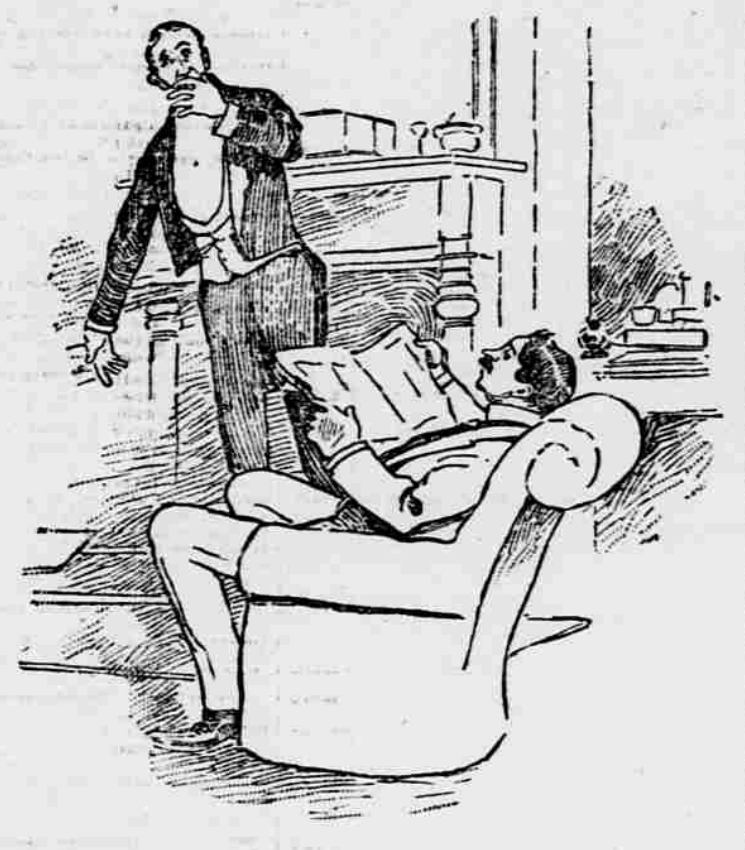

There is a world of clothes philosophy in Shakespeare's line:

"Costly thy habit as thy purse may buy,"

Read up thoroughly on styles of all sorts, before beginning even to look about. Be very certain, too, that what you read is authoritative.

There is as much "fake" fashion literature as "fake" news. Nobody can go far wrong, or suffer serious imposition, who pins her faith to the teachings of any really high-class fashion letter. Thus fortified, you are proof against invidious sugges-

SPLIT IN HANDWRITING.

School Board Debates the New Vertical System.

RESULTED IN A TIE VOTE

Board Stood Four to Four and No Conclusion Was Reached—Warm Debate Was Had and Some Feeding Displayed—Changes in the Corps of Teachers.

The board of public school trustees held a lively meeting yesterday afternoon at the Franklin School building. One result was the establishment of a precedent in the matter of the selection of public school text books. There were motions and counter-motions, as appears from the decision of the chair, voting by roll-call, and finally a recess to allow the committees from which the subject of discussion emanated to confer.

The discussion was precipitated by Dr. Shauld of the committee on penmanship and music, who moved the adoption of the Merrill system of vertical writing in the public schools of the city. The motion was opposed by Dr. Hazen of the committee on text books and studies, who maintained that the matter proper for the committee to consider was the adoption of the Merrill system of vertical writing in the public schools of the city. The motion was carried by a tie vote of four to four.

Major Hazen took a hand in the running debate and spoke with much feeling. Personally, he said, he had no choice in the matter, but in the present instance he did not think that the report of the committee should be referred to a body with inferior authority. The committee, he said, might err, but he thought it would be unfair for the board to refer the report to a sub-committee. Such action, he said, would be undignified and improper.

Dr. Shauld, in reply to Dr. Hazen, said he did not think it desirable to refer the matter to the committee on text books, with Superintendent Powell as an advisor, as the result might be looked upon as dictatorial on the part of that official, and he was satisfied the committee would not be dictated to by anyone.

An effort was then made to postpone the whole matter to the next monthly meeting, but this was opposed by Mr. Hazen, who contended that the board were as well able to settle the matter then as they would be a month hence.

At the suggestion of President Whelpley a recess was taken and the matter was referred to the two committees interested, to report immediately.

WAS A TIE VOTE.

After consultation Dr. Hazen, chairman of the committee on text books, reported that they had agreed to disagree as to the text book to be used, but favored the vertical system.

Mr. Cornish then moved the original question, the adoption of the Merrill system, which was carried by a vote of 6 to 3. Here the question of the necessary two-thirds vote, which carried the matter, was referred to the whole membership of the board.

Mr. Cornish appealed from the decision and demanded a call of the roll, which resulted as follows: No—Harries, Witmer, Shauld, Cornish, Aye—Bernard, Hazen, Wilson, Brown. The chair cast the deciding vote, which resulted in a motion for the adoption of the Burdette system of vertical penmanship. This motion was also lost by a vote of 6 to 4.

Seeing that no conclusion could be arrived at the whole matter was referred to the committees on text books and penmanship jointly, with request that they report at a special meeting to be held next Tuesday.

RESIGNATIONS RECEIVED.

Resignations were received and accepted from Miss Kate O'Neil, teacher in Fourth division, and Miss Nora Moyer of the First division. Also a letter of resignation from Miss Gertrude A. Davis of the class of '96.

The following were appointed juniors: James A. McCalister, M. N. Marden and Edmund Brockington.

Applications for positions as instructors in manual training school were received from Messrs. F. E. Naylor and B. F. T. Bell.

An examination to fill a vacancy in the colored cooking school has been ordered for the 17th inst. There are a large number of applicants and the examination will be written.

BODICE FOR MISS MORTON.

A Satin and Silk "Mazette" Waist, to be Worn at a Morning Wedding in New York.

MISS MORTON, daughter of Levi P. Morton, is a very pale blond young woman, noted for her excellent taste in dress. She manages to give herself the color she lacks, and so brings out her blond delicacy.

The first school was opened in Miss Corson's library, and quickly became fashionable. The first year nearly 1,000 women were taught. To the schools people came for all sorts of service. The greatest demand, however, was for servants, and the strength of the school fell in this direction.

Those in charge were wise enough to know that the most valuable results are obtained from the finest cookery, and an accomplished chef was engaged. Miss Corson wrote to South Kensington and obtained the services of her methods of teaching. These cooking school lessons were soon the talk of the town. The places of the working girl were challenged by the girl of leisure. When the mistress saw Pullan, she felt in an immediate desire to take a hand. Then the constant enmeshment of the mistresses, made private demand for instruction.

Thus there were classes for working girls, for rich girls, for mistresses, for cooks, for aspiring chefs. The town went mad. The chef, Pullan, by this time had been called to Europe, and the cooking lessons fell into Miss Corson's hands. Her mind is of the orderly, systematic kind. In addition to being a diligent student of the practical side of cooking, she applied herself to the study of the economics of food. Her "Twenty-five Cent Dinners" became the text-book in countless workmen's homes. A famous dinner was at the time given to a dozen celebrities as Robert Roosevelt, who consisted of ten courses and cost something under 20 cents a cover.

No less valuable were the ethical results of Miss Corson's teaching. When the tired mothers, the ignorant girls, and the slatternly cooks saw Miss Corson drawing, turning, hands deep in everything, with spotless cuffs, her best gown and apron on, the cause of cooking rose in every woman who regards her appearance.

The enthusiasm for cooking soon spread through the country. Cooking clubs were organized in every city and town that felt itself abreast of things, and Miss Corson was in demand from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast. Charitable boards, school boards, hospital boards asked for practical demonstrations. The organization of a diet kitchen in a Chicago hospital was, in fact, Miss Corson's last public work.

She now, as was said above, lies helpless with a painful disease, and this brief retrospect is intended to recall to her many friends all over the country the great service she has rendered in order that some substantial recognition of it may be made, and in full faith that it will be regarded as a privilege. William T. Blodgett, No. 24 West Twelfth street, New York city, is in charge of this testimonial fund.
